The Bedouin of Israel are located primarily in the southern part, in the Negev Desert, although some have transitioned & are being made to settle in reservation towns & adapt to the modern cash economy of Israel. Bedouins insist the desert is part of who they are. They need help in negotiating with the Israeli government.

Bedouins practice Islam. Traditionally, Bedouins were not politically affiliated with militant Islam etc, but since moving to reservation towns lacking basic infrastructure and available employment, the Islamic movement has moved in to provide social services to the people & call them to a more radical commitment to Islam.
