In 1801, only eight years after arriving in India, William Carey published the first completed Bengali New Testament. He also became a teacher of Oriental languages in a school in Kolkata, which thus provided financial support.

After 25 years of hard labor against many odds, Carey grieved that he could point to only 600 converts & a few thousand seekers, a good harvest among Muslims & Hindus by our standards today.

Since then Kayasthas have surged out of traditional occupations as keepers of public accounts & writers. They now excel in government, science & philosophy. But they remain UnReached with the Gospel of Jesus Christ & continue to follow Hindu traditions.
